Dear Sir/Madam,

The importance of technical communication is constantly growing and, at the same time, requirements are increasing – both within companies and through new initiatives from the EU.

This makes it all the more important for your company to remain visible in your environment in 2026 and to support your customers in the transformation process. To this end, we offer you many cross-media opportunities to successfully promote your services and products.

Our target groups work primarily in the fields of technical documentation, software documentation, user experience, terminology, and localization. With our information platforms and conferences, whether online, hybrid, or on site, we reach multiple regions in Europe and Asia.

tekomp is constantly evolving. For example, the online conference “Information Energy” took place for the first time in 2025 and was a complete success. Here, you can reach a new, international target group.

In order to meet changing user needs, the English-language professional journal “tcworld magazine” is published as an online-only magazine.

Reach everyone you want.

Thanks to a variety of packages and effective advertising elements, such as advertising clips and a combination of on-site, print, and online solutions, you can reach existing customers and attract new ones. For example, take advantage of our numerous conferences with exhibition stands, event sponsorships, sponsored presentations, and advertising clips. Or increase your visibility in the context of the professional journal ‘technische kommunikation’ with advertising in the print magazine or on technischekommunikation.info – the internet portal of our journal ‘technische kommunikation’. The professional journal is the leading medium for company managers and specialists in our industry.

As usual, tekomp corporate members enjoy a preferential price on our offers.

We would be happy to support and advise you in your planning. You can reach our sales team by phone at +49 711 65704-57 or -58 or by email at sales@tekomp.org.

With kind regards,

Claudius Mehne

After a successful launch last year, Information Energy returns as a global online event and key platform for technical communication professionals worldwide.

The three-day event will bring the global TechComm community together to discuss current and future trends in the fields of technical communication, software documentation, and technical translation, and to explore the latest developments in the field of AI.

The conference offers a dynamic program with presentations, workshops, showcases, and discussions. The day kicks off with a "Breakfast Talk" — a lively morning session that sets the stage for the conference.

Information Energy provides the community with a unique opportunity to exchange knowledge, make contacts, and find out about new trends.

The conference will take place online via Zoom to enable interested parties worldwide to participate.

The conference language is English.

Information

Target Audience

The conference is aimed at experienced technical writers, career changers, project managers, translators, and anyone who deals with "information".
