Professional experience in technical communication:

I started as an information developer at SAP in 2006. In 2009 I switched to development and in 2015 I came back to the technical communicators' team in the role of user assistance developer. Now I am a senior user assistance developer working in the field of product documentation, co-doc projects and chatbots conversation design.

Goals for my role as substitute delegate:

I am working to engage more and more people to become technical writers. I am helping friends making a career change and I am taking part in different initiatives related to technical writing.
