

Candidate Profile

Máiréad Jones

is running for the position of delegate.

Academic background:

I completed a BA in German and French at University College Cork in 2016 and an MA in Translation Studies (German and French) in 2017.

Professional career:

I have worked in translation and localisation for eight years, first as a German/French to English translator and reviewer and now as a team coordinator and project and vendor manager on a localisation team.

Professional experience in technical communication:

During my career, I have worked as a translator and project manager for a wide range of technical and scientific clients, including research organisations, warehouse management software companies, ecommerce platforms and medical device manufacturers. I have also been involved in terminology management, software translation, content creation, elearning development and quality standard implementation.

Goals for my role as substitute delegate:

My main aim for tekomp Ireland is to offer value for our members through meaningful opportunities for networking and upskilling and to build connections between companies, established members of the industry and up-and-coming talent. In my role as delegate, I would hope to gain insight from other COs on how to build membership and raise awareness about importance of technical communication within Ireland, by targeting both industry professionals and academic institutions.
